Vintage and classic trends from designers you'll love – Autumn Winter '21 at Specsavers

Autumn Winter '21 at Specsavers focuses on appreciating time-honoured and quality pieces, through modernising vintage styles. This season's collection includes collaborations with international designers such as Marc Jacobs, Viktor & Rolf, Hugo, and coveted local designers, Alex Perry and Carla Zampatti. The range embodies a contemporary vintage aesthetic, featuring updated renditions of iconic shapes and a luxurious colour palette to complement.

The A/W '21 collection includes renewed core shapes such as the aviator, club master, square and round eye, to offer a modern yet classic appeal that caters to the contemporary consumer.

Juan Carlos Camargo, Head of Frames at Specsavers, says "You'll find timelessly trendy frames by designers you'll love. From oversized aviators by Hugo to sophisticated square frames by Marc Jacobs, there's a little something for everyone."

"The A/W range provides a good base of classic styles to build your glasses wardrobe around. We see tortoiseshell and soft gold emerge as important colours for subtle opulence, while textured metals add a stylish touch. These are staples that work smarter, and harder and will be wardrobe additions that never go out of style."

Priced from $299 for two pairs single vision, the styles will be available throughout Autumn/Winter online and in all Specsavers stores nationwide.
